Background

Policymakers, private sector firms, and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) across Asia will gather on 20-24 June 2011 in Manila, Philippines for the 6th Asia Clean Energy Forum,

"New Business Models and Policy Drivers: Building the Low-Carbon Future"

Purpose

The forum will promote best practices in clean energy policy and regulation, financing and investment, innovative business models, and energy access. Parallel breakout sessions will provide opportunities to discuss successfully innovative and creative methods to break down barriers to large scale clean energy development and deployment in Asia Pacific.

Expected Participants

Diverse group of experts, including stakeholders from governments, national and multinational banks, carbon and clean energy investment funds, project developers and service providers, environmental regulators, academe, civil society, and development partners and other international organizations.

Resource Speakers

The forum will showcase distinguished experts from governments, financial institutions, project developers and service providers, civil society, academia, and international organizations in and around the region to share valuable insights on clean energy policy and regulation, financing and investment, innovative business models, and energy access.

Two exceptional keynote speakers have been confirmed for the opening plenary session of the Forum on 22 June:

- Amory Lovins , Cofounder, Chairman and Chief Scientist, Rocky Mountain Institute (by video)
- Mohamed El-Ashry , Senior Fellow, UN Foundation and Chairman, REN21
